COLORADO CARES

20 min.	Color
Available:	State Boards of Health or State Departments of Public Health

Although this film centers on agricultural migrants in Mesa County, Colorado, it demonstrates how a community organizes to handle a situation. Also emphasizes what can be accomplished through the cooperation of many organizations.

THE COMMUNITY (America's Crisis Series)

60 min.	B&W
Rental:	$9.15 (1-5 days). NET Film Service Indiana University Bloomington, Indiana 47405

The film focuses on two contrasting communities on opposite ends of the continent and how they are reacting to the obvious and not-so-obvious ramifications of change. On the eastern seaboard, Provincetown, Massachusetts appears timeless. The community has all the traditional roots, and new citizens feel strongly about their connections with the past. Yet the community is undergoing deep, inescapable, and uncontrollable changes. Provincetown's first citizens, the fishermen, and her second citizens, the artists and writers, have become unconsciously responsible for the town's new industry - tourism. Some fight bitterly to preserve traditions - others have become resigned to change - and others maintain that the town's character will endure despite change. On the west coast stands the symbol of the "new America," San Jose, California. Although its old-timers maintain the city still retains its rural flavor, most of San Jose's residents are newcomers and strangers to one another and take little responsibility for the shape of the community. Problems of overcrowded schools, vast welfare needs, unemployment, crime, and disorganization of planning seem overwhelming to citizens and officials.

HARVEST OF SHAME

54 min. B&W
Rental: Check local public libraries and State University Libraries
Purchase: $250.00
McGraw-Hill, Text-Film Division
330 West 42nd Street
New York 10036

This film reveals the deplorable plight of millions of migratory workers who harvest America's corps. On-the-scene reports in Florida, Georgia, Virginia, New Jersey, New York, Michigan and California show the degradation and exploitation of these men, women and children, who are moved from state to state in trucks, live in crowded, unsanitary huts, and work long hours for little pay. Former Secretary of Labor, James P. Mitchell, and Charles B. Shuman, President of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and spokesmen for the farmers and the workers present their views both for and against the use of migratory workers under the conditions seen. A CBS Reports Production. Narrated by Edward R. Murrow.

Entertaining cartoon animals and birds bring to life the myriad problems of low-income consumers. Here is basic information about buying intelligently, buying within income, avoiding being entrapped by existing practices on the part of some unprincipled merchants in today's market place - practices which are in many cases legal or quasi-legal but definitely not in the interest of the consumer. The film alerts low-income groups to their rights as consumers, rights being denied them because of malpractice, fraud or their own lack of knowledge. The film cleverly and enjoyably points out the proper steps to take, individually or collectively, to become wiser consumers and take full advantage of limited resources. Voice of Mr. Owl - Eli Wallach.

*PANCHO

24 min.	Color
Inquiries:	Public Affairs - OEO 1200 19th Street, N.W. Washington, D. C. 20506

A film on the experiences of The National Head Start Child of the Year, Pancho Mansera, of San Luis Obispo County, California. Head Start medical examinations found Pancho was suffering from acute hypothyroidism. The film depicts Pancho, during the course of extensive medical treatment, changing from a listless, apathetic child into a happy, energetic youngster.

Available:	American Friends Service Committee 160 North 15th Street Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19102
Purchase:	$125.00 Cosmopolitan Film Associates 181 2nd Street San Francisco, California 94105

Eight out of ten farm workers in California's rich, productive San Joaquin Valley live in shacks that flout every health and safety standard. "Six Homes - Six Houses" details how, with American Friends advice, six determined Tulara County families organized a housing cooperative, acquired FHA loans at 4% and gave 9,000 hours of hard work, night and day, toward a better standard of living. Inspiring illustration of the basic soundness of the self-help technique.

VISTA - WHILE I RUN THIS RACE

28 1/2 min.	Color
Available:	Distribution to be determined

The film shows the efforts of VISTA volunteers in two settings in Arizona: one, a retired couple organizing a preschool to keep children of Mexican American migrants out of the fields; the second, two young men helping a settlement of Negro farm workers to develop such community action projects as stop signs, a clean-up campaign, and pure drinking water.

SPANISH LANGUAGE RADIO AND TV STATIONS

Introduction

The radio and television stations which utilize Spanish as the language of communication fall into two divisions: (1) those in the five Southwestern states serving the largest concentration of Mexican Americans and (2) those in other parts of the country where Mexican Americans may have migrated, such as the states further to the northwest. In some instances the stations are entirely devoted to using Spanish for all activities; in others, newscasters and announcers may speak all news in both Spanish and English or offer special programs in Spanish.

CONCLUSION

It would seem that the time-worn adage that no bibliography is ever truly exhaustive and complete is especially applicable to a study on the Mexican American, for his own efforts to prove that he is a first-class citizen have caught on with such force that he has become an object of daily concern. He has aroused a keen interest among educators, sociologists and even among politicians who want to know who he is, where he is, what his problems are and, most importantly, what can be done to help him. Numerous organizations, government agencies and institutions of higher learning have assumed the task of identifying his problems and proposing solutions. From this recent research an interesting consensus of opinion has resulted - the Mexican American has contributed much to the success of his adopted country. He has helped to till its soil, fight its wars and enrich its cultural heritage with his customs, folklore and language. Unique as he is, he is not really basically different from any other American. And he has determined that he will now reap the benefits of his labors, he will enjoy the same economic status as his non-Mexican counterpart, and he will share the beauty of his own culture with his countrymen.

The U.S. Congress last year saw fit to introduce and support a successful bill which will provide over 7 million dollars in funds for bilingual education. Some of the organizations which have expressed an interest in developing materials for this and similar educational programs are: The Southwest Cooperative Educational Laboratory, in Albuquerque, New Mexico; The Southwest Educational Development Laboratory in Austin, Texas; Southwest Regional Laboratory for Educational Research and Development in Inglewood, California; Far West Laboratory for Educational Research and Development in Berkeley, California; the Pan American Union Books for the People Fund, Inc. and Project LEER, both in Washington D. C.; The Center for Applied Linguistics also in Washington; and the 19 Educational Resources Information Centers located throughout the country with offices at the Bureau of Research, U.S. Office of Education, Washington D. C.

The Federal government has taken a new interest in revitalizing the programs which are designed to improve the lot of minority groups and in disseminating information about these programs. Two publications which have proved to be particularly informative are: Federal-State Programs for Developing Human and Community Resources, a packet of information prepared by the Federal Extension Service, U.S. Dept. of Agriculutre; and Catalog of Federal Assistance Programs, produced by the Office of Economic Opportunity. The Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington D. C. has for sale a number of booklets in Spanish on such topics as child care, consumer protection, women's rights, etc. The U.S. Information Agency and the U. S. Agency for International Development both have numerous publications and audio-visual materials in Spanish which could be useful to the Mexican American community. Although existing legislation prevents the circulation within the U. S. of materials developed for distribution abroad, there has been discussion about the feasability of seeking permission to implement some of these materials in programs such as bilingual education. The U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington has established two offices which concentrate on Mexican American affairs: The Mexican American Unit of the Office of Education and the Office of the Spanish-Surnamed located in the Office of the Secretary. In addition, the Hispanic Foundation of the Library of Congress, which normally occupies itself with the literary and historical affairs of Latin America, has recently expressed an interest in the Spanish-speaking people of the United States.

Perhaps the most encouraging sign of all is the tendency of colleges and universities to fulfill their obligation as social institutions by not only recruiting and financially assisting members of the Spanish-Surnamed minority, but also by establishing special centers or institutes on Mexican American studies. California has led the way in this innovative idea: Claremont College, Whittier College, San Fernando Valley State College, Santa Clara University, California State University campuses at Los Angeles, Hayworth, Long Beach, and Fullerton, and the University of California at Los Angeles are only a few of the schools in that state with such centers. St. Mary's University in San Antonio, Texas and the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque are among other Southwestern institutions developing similar programs.

The trend to regard the Mexican American as an integral part of the society of these United States is continuing to gain momentum as the traditional dividing lines are disappearing. We can expect, then, that the materials produced regarding the Mexican American shall grow in wealth, and, consequently, we must continue combing indices and reader's guides, as well as recording other materials that come to our attention, to keep abreast of this rising tide.
